

If I leave my investments overseas, will I have to pay Australian tax on the income?

Once a permanent resident you will be required to pay tax on all income regardless of which country the income is derived. You should obtain professional advice in this area as the Australian Government have agreements with some other governments in relation to taxation to avoid paying double tax